

Individual reflection W1 - Sara Persson

- What do I want to learn or understand better?

I am currently still unsure about scrum, the general project plan, the group dynamic, and what my role will be in the group/project.

I would like to learn—and, more importantly, understand—scrum. I would like to have a more defined project plan. I would also like to be more comfortable in my role in the group and project.

To achieve scrum understanding I will spend more time reading and reflecting on scrum, but also performing it mindfully when the time comes to start scrum for "real". Because of necessity the project plan will be more defined next week, and the week after that, so that will hopefully clear up the chaos a little. Hopefully by being with the group more I will find more footing. But I will also try and start with some contribution to the group as soon as possible, so I feel more secure in my role and helpful as a team member. An early idea of some contribution could be to learn scrum and be instructive with that, when the time comes.

- How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?

At this point this is hard to say—I don't know what they don't know that I know. I would like to be instructive and helpfully knowledgeable about scrum. I am going to try and improve my scrum knowledge and understanding so I can inform group members of scrum practices (should they not know).

- What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum?

As of yet, not a lot... or, possibly, at all. I pushed for a mid week meeting and stuff like that. I would like to be instrumental in this. To do that I will improve my knowledge and understanding of scrum.

- What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

I brought up the topic of the Friday delivery, though I am sure it would have been brought up anyway... Nevertheless, I would say I have taken an active roll in the construction of the social contract. I would like to continue being an active part in the teams deliveries. I will do so by keeping informed of the upcoming deliveries, what they entail, and informing the group of this if it is forgotten or kept to a possibly too low priority. Additionally I will try to the best of my abilities to remain present and helpful in future delivery constructions.
